

Constructing

Make a cup and plate anemometer in order to learn what more complicated devices for measuring wind strength look like and how they work.

Constructing

Students make paper windmills - one of the simplest devices for measuring the strength of the wind.

