

Presenting results

Prepare an exhibition of sports posters on the walls of your classroom.

The use of walls extends the time of contact with the knowledge that has been the subject of the lesson. If the information boards (posters) are left on the wall, the students can return to them and consolidate the information they have learned.

By creating information boards and highlighting them in the classroom, the students become active creators of their educational environment.

Additional hints:

During their work, the students should be able to consult the teacher at all times.

At the end of the work, one person from each team should present the developed material to all students.